Tenure-Track Position in Architectural History
University of North Carolina at Charlotte
School of Architecture (SoA)

The School of Architecture (SoA) at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in Architectural History at the rank of Assistant Professor. The position involves participating in teaching the school's required three-semester sequence in the history and theory of architecture, as well as advanced seminars to graduate and upper-level undergraduate students. This position is intended to extend the depth and breadth of our curriculum in architectural history, theory and criticism. The faculty are particularly interested in candidates capable of offering seminars in modern, contemporary, and/or Non-Western architecture. The successful candidate must demonstrate the ability to effectively conduct research and scholarship in the discipline of architectural history and teach professional design students. A PhD in Architectural History or a related discipline is required.

The SoA offers four degree programs: Bachelor of Arts in Architecture (B.A. in Arch.), Bachelor of Architecture (B.Arch.), Master of Architecture (M.Arch.) and Master of Urban Design (MUD), as well as dual-degree programs in Architecture + Urban Design and Architecture + Computer Science. The SoA has also recently launched an undergraduate minor in Architectural History and Criticism. The successful candidate will be involved in that minor as well as in development of a future Masters of Science in Architecture (M.S. in Arch) concentration in architectural history, theory, and criticism.

The SoA is committed to a culturally and intellectually diverse environment that supports a broad range of opportunities for scholarly work. UNC Charlotte is an "urban research" university in which faculty and students are supported by exceptional facilities and a dynamic metropolitan landscape. We celebrate diversity that includes, but is not limited to, ability/disability, age, culture, ethnicity, gender identification, language, race, religion, sexual orientation, and socio-economic status. We strongly encourage applications from women and members of under-represented groups and expect all applicants to identify assets that address our diverse student population.

Qualified applicants must complete the online faculty application at <https://jobs.uncc.edu> (position #004012). Application requirements include: 1) a cover letter; 2) statement on research interests and objectives; 3) statement on pedagogical philosophy and teaching interests; 4) statement on approaches to diversity in research and the classroom; 5) CV including contact information for three references; and 6) research and writing sample(s). Review of applications will commence December 15, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled. Faculty appointment will commence August 15, 2018. Questions regarding the above position may be directed to Chris Jarrett at chjarrett@uncc.edu.
