“If you can’t fly, run; if you can’t run, walk; if you can’t walk, crawl;
but by all means keep moving.”

— Martin Luther King Jr. (1929-1968)

DR. DAVID WILSON, PRESIDENT

David Wilson, Ed.D., the 10th president of Morgan State University, has a long record of accomplishment and more than 30 years of experience in higher education administration. Dr. Wilson holds four academic degrees: a B.S. in political science and an M.S. in education from Tuskegee University; an Ed.M. in educational planning and administration from Harvard University and an Ed.D. in administration, planning and social policy, also from Harvard. He came to Morgan from the University of Wisconsin, where he was chancellor of both the University of Wisconsin Colleges and the University of Wisconsin–Extension. Before that, he held numerous other administrative posts in academia, including: vice president for University Outreach and associate provost at Auburn University, and associate provost of Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey.

Dr. Wilson's tenure as Morgan's president, which began on July 1, 2010, has been characterized by great gains for the University. Among the many highlights are: a second-year retention rate of 76 percent for the entering class of 2013, the highest rate in two decades and the fourth consecutive year that the rate has exceeded 70 percent; procurement of the university's largest-ever research contract, a $28.5-million, five-year contract from NASA; inclusion of Morgan as one of the recipients of a $129-million energy innovation research grant to Penn State University; an alumni participation-in-giving rate of 17 percent for fiscal year 2015, representing a 183 percent increase since 2010; the founding of a new school, the School of Global Journalism and Communication; the launch of an aggressive initiative to maintain excellence in customer service and improve the information technology infrastructure on campus; new construction on campus valued at more than $271 million; signing of articulation agreements with several two-year colleges, bringing Morgan bachelor's degrees to their campuses; approval of Morgan's first off-campus baccalaureate program by the State of Maryland; establishment of Morgan's first online degree program; a significant expansion of study abroad opportunities for Morgan students; and the continuation of Morgan's status as the No. 1 HBCU in production of Fulbright scholars and grantees.

Dr. Wilson's achievements as leader of Maryland's Preeminent Public Urban Research University have clearly been strong, but it is the character he brings to the presidency, a character shaped by the intangibles of his background, that is perhaps most impressive of all. Dr. Wilson grew up with 10 siblings on a sharecropper farm outside the small town of McKinley, Ala. Through hard work, tenacity and the encouragement of his father and his teachers, he became the first person in his family to attend college. Dr. Wilson builds upon that legacy as the proud father of Nyere Brown Wilson, a current student majoring in business administration at Morgan.

BIOS OF SYMPOSIUM SPEAKERS

Dr. David Di Maria is Associate Vice Provost for International Education at the University of Maryland Baltimore County. In this capacity, he promotes and advances the international dimensions of teaching, research and service by working collaboratively with administrators, faculty, staff, students and community leaders to create global engagement opportunities that align with UMBC's mission, vision and strategic goals. Prior to joining UMBC, Di Maria served as Associate Vice Provost for International Programs at Montana State University-Bozeman and as Director of International Programs and Services at Kent State University. Dr. Di Maria is the chair-elect of the International Education Leadership Knowledge Community at NAFSA. He has recently edited a book, Senior International Officers: essential Roles and Responsibilities (NAFSA, 2019). You can reach Dr. Di Maria at +1-410-455-4798 or dimaria@umbc.edu

Dr. Dafina Blacksher Diabate is Director of International Programs at Lincoln University, in Pennsylvania. Diabate provides leadership for international programs, partnerships, and strategy at one of the oldest Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). Diabate previously served as the Associate Director of the Association of International Education Administrators (AIEA), where she managed daily operations of the Secretariat based at Duke University. She is a member of the Pennsylvania Consortium on International Education, serves on the 2020 conference committee for Diversity Abroad, and is a 2019-2020 AIEA Presidential Fellow. She earned a master's in

Africana studies from Cornell University, and a doctorate in higher education management from the University of Pennsylvania, where she conducted research on presidential leadership in internationalization at HBCUs. She can be reached at ddiabate@lincoln.edu

Dr. Mary McConner is the Chief of Staff to the President at Christian Brothers University in Memphis, Tennessee. In this newly developed role, Dr. McConner serves as a member of the Executive Cabinet and provides leadership, guidance and support on a range of strategic matters. She represents the Office of the President's position through service on selected University committees and in other stakeholder meetings. In addition, Dr. McConner serves as the Executive Director of Inclusive Excellence, leading institutional efforts toward advancing diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging within the CBU community. In her previous role as the Director of Multicultural

Student Services at Christian Brothers University, she managed three departments – Multicultural Student Services, Study Abroad, and International Programs – and led efforts in implementing a strategic plan to advance diversity and inclusion. She has also served as an advisor in administrative roles at multiple universities, which granted her the opportunity to advise international students, postdoctoral fellows, and international faculty. As a researcher, Dr. McConner is particularly interested in assessing and understanding the experiences of international faculty and faculty from underrepresented groups. Her doctoral dissertation, completed at Auburn University in 2017, is entitled “Perceptions of teaching excellence: An examination of foreign and US-educated faculty at Historically Black Colleges and Universities”. She can be reached at (901) 321-3552 or mmcconn1@cbu.edu

Dr. Sharmila Udyavar directs International Programs at Fayetteville State University, North Carolina. She is also a faculty in the department of Sociology with a keen interest in providing global and intercultural opportunities for students who might not possess the ability to travel abroad. Sharmila is also interested in assessing the global learning outcomes of students from data collected specifically to measure this outcome. She has worked extensively with Fulbright and other programs to bring diverse exchange visitors to her campus. Hosting new cohorts of Fulbright FLTAs from various world regions is something she looks forward to annually every Fall. In her leisure time, Sharmila is an avid traveler with a long bucket list of places to experience and an earnest “people collector” with friends all over the world. She can be reached at sudyavar@uncfsu.edu

Dr. Darla Deardorff is currently executive director of the Association of International Education Administrators, a national professional organization based in Durham, North Carolina USA. She is also a research scholar with the Social Science Research Institute at Duke University, where she has been an adjunct faculty member in the Program in Education and a faculty affiliate with learning/assessment and has published eight books including as editor of The SAGE Handbook of Intercultural Competence (Sage, 2009) as well as lead editor of The SAGE Handbook of International Higher Education (Sage, 2012) with Hans de Wit, John Heyl and Tony Adams, Building Cultural Competence (Stylus, 2012) with Kate Berardo and co-author of Beneath the Tip of the Iceberg: Improving English and Understanding US American Cultural Patterns (University of Michigan Press, 2011). She is also author of the recently published book on Demystifying Outcomes Assessment for International Educators: A Practical Approach (Stylus, 2015) and co-editor of Intercultural Competence in Higher Education: International Approaches, Assessment, Application (Routledge, 2017) with Lily Arasaratnam-Smith. Her seventh book, Leading Internationalization (Stylus, 2018) is with Harvey Charles and her most recent book is Manual on Developing Intercultural Competencies: Story Circles (Routledge/UNESCO, 2019). She can be reached at d.deardorff@duke.edu.

Dr. Chrystal George Mwangi is an Associate Professor in higher education. Her scholarship broadly centers on 1) structures of opportunity and educational attainment for underrepresented populations along the P-20 education pipeline; 2) impacts of globalization and migration on U.S. higher education at the student, institution, and policy levels; and 3) African and African Diaspora populations in higher education. Dr. George Mwangi worked for a number of years as a college administrator including positions in undergraduate admissions, multicultural affairs, student conduct, and academic advising. She has also engaged in education research and policy work for organizations including the Council for Opportunity in Education, the Pell Institute for the Study of Opportunity in Higher Education, and Higher Education for Development. She can be reached at chrystal@umass.edu or at (413) 545-0747
