Assistant or Associate Professor - Architecture + Computation + Making

Location: Clemson, SC

Description

Clemson University School of Architecture College of Architecture, Arts & Humanities Assistant or Associate Professor in Architecture + Computation + Making.

The Clemson University School of Architecture CUSoA invites applicants for a full-time tenure-track/tenured position in Architecture + Computation + Making at the rank of Assistant or Associate professor with an anticipated start date of August 15, 2024.

We seek a candidate who will demonstrate a research and scholarship agenda associated with the role of Architecture + Computation + Making. The typical teaching workload in the CUSoA is one design studio plus one seminar in each of the Fall and Spring semesters. The CUSoA fosters a rich culture of making, evidenced through teaching, research, and scholarship. Utilizing contemporary computational tools and workflows, this position presents the opportunity to galvanize our various Laboratories and Institutes. CUSoA is home to and partners with a diverse range of research institutes supported through our Digital Design Shop (DDS), Materials Lab, and Built Environmental Lab (BEL). This position will present opportunities to engage with our Institute for Intelligent Materials, Systems, and Environments (IMSE), our Wood Utilization Design Institute (WUD), our Community Research and Design Center (CRDC), and our Center for Health Facilities Design and Testing.

About the CUSoA

The School of Architecture, part of the College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities (CAAH) that encompasses 8 other departments, celebrated its centennial in 2013. School facilities include the award-winning Clemson campus building designed by Clemson alumnus Thomas Phifer and satellite centers in Charleston, SC; Genoa, Italy; and Barcelona, Spain. The school has approximately 500 students enrolled in the BA in Architecture, the Master of Architecture (M. Arch., and the MS in Architecture degrees). The School boasts an interdisciplinary Ph.D. program in Planning, Design and the Built Environment. Clemson's M. Arch. program consistently ranks in or near the nation's top 20 accredited graduate architecture programs, according to the Design Intelligence rankings, and consistently within the top 10 among public universities. Additional information about the School of Architecture can be found at <http://www.clemson.edu/architecture>.

Clemson University is a top 25, Carnegie R1 public research university. Founded in 1889, Clemson is the land-grant institution of South Carolina with more than 27,000 students in over 200 degree programs. Located in the Upstate of South Carolina, the city of Clemson provides a small college-town setting on the shores of Lake Hartwell, near both the scenic foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains and the metropolitan areas of Greenville, SC; Asheville and Charlotte, NC; and Atlanta, GA. Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion at the CUSoA

In the last ten years the School of Architecture has increased the diversity in demographics both in faculty and students, but continues efforts to create a more equitable and inclusive environment. The architecture of South Carolina is consequently affected by the lack of diverse and inclusive voices in the profession. For the employment in local practices and firms, we are the main educators of future generations of registered architects in the state of South Carolina. It is imperative that this tenure-track candidate brings a diverse, inclusive, and equitable pedagogy and a progressive approach to teaching, as well as an understanding of how equal representation in professional practice has a direct impact on the communities least represented in this field. This candidate is expected to have a clear understanding of history and to embrace the emerging culture of inclusivity.
